A Sequence of Deaths

A dispatch from Baltimore to the New York Sun sajs.

A singular circumstano, not published, a related in councellon with the suicide nare at his home of young John McVicker Wyatt on New Y-at's night, "Mac," as he was known, was one of the handsomest young fellows in the clip, a cub man and athlete. He was of a flery, impetuous tem-perament, and in some of his practices so cocentric that there is good reason for doubting his sanity.

Some years ago on annt residing in another city was invited to visit the family, and did so, and during her stay one of the members died. Later she paid another visit, and again there was a death. The circumstance was need as rather singular; but a year later she came for the third time, and either while she was staying or immediately after her departure, there was a third death. So strange a coincidence was naturally distressing to all concerned, as she is a lady of great amisbility of character and hold in the nighest esteem and regard by her relatives. Upon a fourth visit death again attended her and when she returned to her home she appounced that she had determined never to come back to Baltimare again. She kept her resolution for some time, but her brother, the father of young Wysit, in the early past of December wrote to her orging her to spend the Christmas holidays with the family. He spoke lightly of the superstititions associations attending her for mer visite, and remarked humorously that the war now impossible for any one to d.e. as they were all in the best of heath and spirits, and could defy the ghastly intruder on former occasions of her appearance. As she had so often shared their grief in bareavement, it was now proper that she should enjoy with them the pleasure they had planned for the Christmas holldays.

With some misgivings, and yet inclined now to consider the singular chain of circumstances in the past as merely a coincidence, the auat broke her resolution and came to Baltimore. Christmas went mer-rily by, and all was well until New Year's night. A little before midnight the aunt re tired from the company in the parlor, in-tending to go to her room, which adjoined that of her nephew, young McVickar, who bad been out all the evening. Seeing his door partly open and the light burning dimly, she concluded that he had come in unobserved, and had probably fallen asleep without undressing. She entered his apartments, and, in an instant, was frozen with horror, for there on the bed he ley, dead, a pistol in his hand and blood all about him. He had slipped into the house and up stairs and shot himself, the report of the revolver being un-heard below. Thus for the fifth time was a death in the family associated immediately with this aunt's visit—a circumstance for the see that the stock is always full, and to attend to members of the Society for Paychical Re search to reflect upon.

Why young Wyatt took his life is a myt tery. There is a report that he was secretly married and stood in fear of some trouble in connection with the alliance. Some of his stronge freaks, as already stated, seem to indicate insanity. Among other queer practices he was in the habit of crucifying stray cats against the wall of his garden, impaling the animals against the fence by driving small nails through their feet. He would also extract the fange of snakes and force tobeco down the throats of the rep-tiles. He had a hot, ungovernable temper, and was domineering and fearless. His family is among the most fashionable in the

A CARD—We are aware that a number of Alexandrians go to Washington for their CHINA and GLASSWARE, and we believe that with the proper effort and attention all or nearly all of these people can be induced to bry goods in these lines at home. We intend therefore to do all in our power to further this end, and for this purpose we I ave selected our stock for fall with more than usual care and foresight. Our retail department, besides, we put under the especial the wants of our Alexandria customers. We only keep "firsts" (goods selected by the manufacturer as perfect), and we buy only from the manufacturer. For this reason, we can sell you not only the best goods, but at the very lowest prices. In fine French china, we will order any of Havi-land's patterns at a very reasonable price. Hep-ing that our efforts may be rewarded, and thanking you for past kindess, we are very truly yours, sep 27
